Virginia Glass Works Destroyed. About six o'clock Saturday evening several short biasts of whistles followed by long distress calls attracted attention to the western portion of the city, whence the sounds came, and almost simultaneously a cloud of smoke shot upward from the Virginia Glass Works The collapse of what is known in glass works parlane as a lehr" had communicated flames to the packing There were appliances on the grounds to meet such emergencies, but when an attempt was made to use them it was found that the water connections were frozen. The fire in the meantime was gaining dangerous headway, and an alarm was sounded to aid from this city. According to an understanding, the Reliance fire engine is to respond to all alarms which are sounded at the Virginia and Belle Pre Works, and the Columbia is to proceed to the Old Dominion Works when its services are Accordingly when the whistles sounded the Reliance engine and the Relief Hook and Ladder truck proceeded

The inflammable nature of

and the works proper, except the kilns, two hours later were a mass of ruins. Chief Pettey and the Alexandria firemen were considerably bandicapped by the nature of the fire. They could not throw water too near the hot kilns lest they be damaged, and in one of the burning buildings was a quantity of lime in sacks which would have been ruined if water had been thrown upon it. During the progress of the fire the row of frame buildings nearby had to be protected by the firemen and but for their affirms there. their efforts these houses would have

Seventeen hundred and fifty feet of hose were put in use at the fire. In these were included nine sections of the new hore which were received by the wardens a & days ago. The Hart nez zle was used with satisfactory results.

The buildings on the east, in which many boxes of bot les were saved, were uninjured, and the ther structures on the north escaped dama ce. These, however ever, are mostly in the na ture of sheds.

One of the kilns is said to be 'atact; the other, however, is belived to have been damaged, but to what extent is not now known. It is impossible at present to approximate the actual loss, though some place it from $10,000 to $20,000. The works were but partially insured. It is generally believed that they will

Many people flocked to the scene of the fire while it was raging, and hun-dreds visited the premises yesterday. Had it broken out a few days ago during the intense cold and northwest winds and extended among the many railway cars adjourning the works on the south the destruction of property would have been enormous. On Saturday evening while the fire was raging a comparative

The Virginia Glass Works were established in the early ninenes by eigh men who had had practical experience the manufacture of glass. They pooled small sums they had saved and started the works on a small scale. These gentlemen worked assiduously and from time to time added new appliances and buildings until the capacity of the plant had reached a point when the services of a hundred persons were required present but two of the original parties (Messrs. John S. Bordner and Peter Astryke) are interested in the works, the others being identified with the Old Dominion and Belle-Pre Works.

It was said this evening that though nothing definite had yet been decided upon by the officers of the glass company, yet it is now more than probable that a shed will at once be erected over the furnace that has not been injured and that operations at the factory will be resumed in a short time.

The Weather and the River.

A thaw was in evidence yesterday and the sound of water gurgling in the gut, ters was again heard. At some intersections of streets it was necessary to wade in order to pass from curb to curb. The temperature was mild and many people were on the streets notwithstanding the water and mud. The heavens became partly hazy late last night and a circle sround the moon portended more falling weather. About half-past two o'clock this morning snow began to fall and by daybreak the ground had an additional translation. ditional two inch layer upon it. Later in the day the snow was followed by hight rain. At 7 o'clock this morning the mercury stood at 30°.

Chemises instead of being shapeless things looking like a petticoat with a top cut out in V shape are shaped to fit. Corset Covers are cut right to go over straight front corsets, and under tight-fitting bodies. When it comes to the laces and embroideries and materials from which the underclothes are made, you would in most cases choose ours with your eyes shut. You won't find a piece of muslin among them filled up with clay to make it heavy, nor anything pretending to be nainsook which is as coarse as a salt bag.
